

Irish-American Meeting.

Notwithstanding an effort was made on the part of democrats to capture or break up the great Irish-American meeting held in New York City the other night in the interest of Blaine and Logan, it proved a grand success in every particular.

The chairman presented Alexander Sullivan, of Chicago, the principal speaker of the evening, who when he came on the stage was applauded and cheered to the echo, and for two hours he treated his audience to a speech rich with argument, satire and invective.

Correspondence.

[In this department the people talk, and not the editor. Each writer must hold himself ready to defend his principles and his statements of facts.]

MR. EDITOR:—The Democrat says that the Democrats who will have the hardihood to vote for Blaine will be a blue looking crowd after November next.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—The subject is one requiring much thought. To require a proper course, and to aid in the removal of difficulties is the object of this article.

1st. The habit once formed of social drinking is to be perpetuated. Traffic says, yes; total abstinence, no.

2d. The respectability of the vendor must by some means be declared. Traffic says, by all means. Total abstinence, can see no ground for exercise of respect.

3d. The protection of those engaged in the business must be assured; no prosecutions for the traffic, but a few restrictions wherein the traffic is made safer and more profitable.

4th. The perpetuity of our institutions rests upon the maintenance of a free ballot, an honest count and correct returns.

Blaine's Triumphant Tour.

The reception of Mr. Blaine in New York and the popular demonstration which greeted him en route from New York to Philadelphia have never been surpassed in extent or enthusiasm in the political history of this country.

At every station the people have turned out en masse, everywhere in the night, and thousands upon thousands in their marching clubs have paraded in his honor.

These immense demonstrations are due not more to the position which Mr. Blaine holds as the head of the Republican ticket than to the personal esteem in which he is individually held and to the love which is felt for him as an American who holds his country and its citizens above all others.

The popular demonstrations which have greeted Mr. Blaine thus far on his triumphant journey will be continued as he proceeds—nay more, as he comes westward they will grow in enthusiasm, for he is admired even more in the West than in the East.

"I Wish I Had Capital."

So we heard a great, strapping young man exclaim the other day. We concluded that he wanted a little practical advice, and we will give it to him.

You want capital, do you? And suppose you had what you call capital, what would you do with it?

Oh, but they are not money," say you. But they are more than money, and nobody can take them from you. Don't you know how to use them?

If you don't, it's time you were learning. Take hold of the plow, or hoe, or jack-plane, or broad-axe, and go to work.

Some of our bourbon friends are very unhappy because Senator Edmunds is not stamping the country with Blaine. Not to speak of the patient fact that they would be much more miserable if he were, it is perhaps unnecessary to tell them that the senator is not in the habit of stamping, and that he has made a speech or two this fall that quite satisfy republicans.

It is the first duty of a good government to protect the rights and promote the interests of its own people.

England and Blaine.

Brooklyn Daily Times. The Times has never had the least doubt as to the reasons why the English press of New York is so bitter in its opposition to Blaine, and so resolute in its determination to defeat him.

These newspapers dare not avow their true purpose and motives. They pretend that they regard Blaine as a corrupt man, although they know that a Democratic Investigating Committee virtually exonerated him, and that the purest and best men in the country have been and are his associates and friends.

Let every American citizen read this. Cut it out and read it to your friends and neighbors. They don't talk any rot about Milligan's letters over in England, for they can afford to tell the truth.

The fact is, the Republican party, without making a noise about it, commenced to reform the civil service as soon as Mr. Lincoln was elected in 1861.

Mrs. Blaine.

"Gath," in the N. Y. Tribune, says: Speaking of Mrs. Blaine to a gentleman a week ago, her husband said: "There is my sheet-anchor; there is my prop."

They have been abusing you as they did me; but they will elect you nevertheless. And another with Gen. Grant's other declaration: I do not know of any time when Republican success was more essential to National prosperity than at present.

These words should blaze all along the line of the procession. They are worthy of the man who uttered them.

After doing service for his country upon the field of battle, Mr. Dorsey came to Fremont a little over seven years ago, and has since made that city his home.

It was in a barber shop, and the barber was tending a two-dollar bill by the man he had just shaved.

It is announced by some person that a chunk of dynamite carried about the person will cure rheumatism.

PERSONAL AND IMPERSONAL.

—Miss Blanche Tilton, who died in Philadelphia recently, made a request which remained her command, and no burning took place at the Le Moyne furnace.

—Mrs. Patience Downs, of Kennebunkport, Me., was found dead in bed the other morning with a lamp burning at the head of her bed, and an open Bible at her side; and eighteen months ago her husband was found one morning dead in bed with a lamp burning at the head and an open Bible by his side.

—Mrs. Bertram Mifflord, who is a granddaughter of the old, original, genuine "Commodore" Vanderbilt, has created a sensation in Paris by giving a party in which all the guests were in menagerie make-up as beasts or birds.

—The trouble with most baritone singers who try to soar into the tenor register is that they fly to parts unknown.

"A LITTLE NONSENSE."

"No," she said, sweetly, "I don't object to the smell of a cigar; it's the smell of the smoke I don't like."

—Car will kill a cat. The cat must be executed in Utah, it is extremely dilapidated, however, and it is in the dark with a bottle.

—Travels in Utah—"Is your mother in?" asked a visitor of a little Mormon boy who opened the door.

—An unshaven man with a couple of black eyes, a bruised nose and a cut lip, was escorted into the Harlem Police Court yesterday, where Justice O'Reilly was informed that he had made Manhattanville hall on Saturday night, and that a platoon of policemen had to sit on lugs before he could get to his station.
